Are Far Reaching.

Akron Should Have Street
Fair Each Year.

Timely Testimonial to Chairman Werner

For His Untiring Efforts to Make a Success

Of the Splendid Event Just Closed—
Notes.

BY CHAIRMAN P. E. WERNER.

"In order to make the Free Carnival and Street Fair a permanent institution, an association should be organized at once, the members to have full charge of the plans and arrangements to carry out such an undertaking each year.

"With such a splendid nucleus as has been formed, it will be a comparatively easy task to enlist the co-operation of every society in the city for the purpose of carrying out the object. In this way preparations may be commenced early and the success achieved will be far beyond the expectations of all.

"In my opinion it is within the province of the Chamber of Commerce to bring about such a permanent organization.

"The task hereafter will be very easy, after the great object lesson which has just been given the people.

"Other cities in the country, especially in the southern portions, are doing an enormous amount of good for their localities by conducting annually such events as Akron has just concluded, and there is no reason why Akron should not continue the Free Carnival and Street Fair from year to year as well as other places.

"Akron merchants and business men should do all in their power to counteract the influence of Cleveland in its opposition to the trade of this city."

Akron's Free Carnival and Street Fair terminated Saturday night in a most triumphant manner; a great success had been achieved, and it was celebrated in a manner worthy of its greatness.

Between 7 and 12 o'clock Saturday night the streets were crowded with people, everybody in a good humor, glad they lived in Akron, a city proverbial for its enterprise, whose citizens have just concluded rearing another monument to their energy and thrift.

About 9 o'clock there began to assemble at the secretary's booth the chairmen of the various committees having in charge the arrangements for the Free Carnival and Street Fair. Chairman Werner was there, chatting with his friends, wholly unconscious of the object of his being invited to the booth to help "transact some important business" incident to the closing features of the big show.

To him it seemed nothing but an ordinary move when Secretary H. L. Snyder called the committee meeting to order and Chas. H. Baker was placed in the chair. But President Baker's words of introduction soon conveyed to Mr. Werner the object of the meeting.

Mr. Baker's Remarks.

Mr. Baker said: "The purpose for which this meeting of the chairmen of the committees was called is that we may express our sincerest appreciation of the untiring efforts of him who has labored so diligently and unselfishly for the success of the great event which has been concluded so gloriously, and who as chairman of our executive committee has at all times given us such excellent advice and valuable aid. We, as well as the entire city, owe our united thanks to him who made possible that large degree of success achieved by the conducting of Akron's Free Carnival and Street Fair—Mr. Paul E. Werner."

"I heard today, as I was passing along the street, some one say 'I wish that Akron had a hundred Paul E. Werners,' but I want to say that if we had all of that number we would still need our own Paul E. Werner."

Mr. Burdette L. Dodge was called on for remarks. He spoke of his individual appreciation of Mr. Werner's labors for the success of the fair, and presented the following resolutions.

Resolutions.

"Be it resolved, That the thanks of the members of the several committees and other active workers of the Free Carnival and Street Fair are due, and are hereby extended to our chief executive, Mr. Paul E. Werner."

"In the many perplexing situations confronting him, he has at all times been the ideal executive."

"In the conception and carrying out of the designs of this Fair and Carnival his has been the guiding hand, and whatever success has been achieved, we feel has been due to his ability as well as to his untiring and unselfish energy."

"He has earned the gratitude and is entitled to the thanks of the citizens of Akron."

Messrs. J. W. Little and H. A. Kasson also spoke words eulogistic of the services of Mr. Werner as chief executive.

Delegation of Elks.

When their remarks were concluded a large delegation of Elks headed by the K.O.T.M. band came to the booth and extended to the executive committee an invitation to their club rooms, when the exercises were over. A lively serenade was then given the committee by the K. O. T. M. band, after which Mr. Baker said:

"Mr. Werner is present and has heard the charges made against him in our resolutions and remarks, but nothing that he may say in his defense will in any way change the verdict, and under the circumstances I will now call for a rising vote to adopt the resolution."

As the vote was being announced, the Eighth Regiment band appeared and extended a further honor to Mr. Werner by sending him a serenade.

Mr. Werner Presented.

Following the serenade Mr. Werner was presented to the large and enthusiastic audience crowding about the booth. Main st. between Market and Mill was filled with people, and when cheers were proposed for Mr. Werner the response was at once terrific about the booth.

"Who are they cheering?" cried a voice from the vicinity of Market st. "Chairman Werner!" yelled another.

Thousands Cheered.

The same question was asked and answered near Mill street and then all along the line the cheering was taken up and thousands of voices sounded the praises of him who knew no defeat, would permit of none, and gave to Akron merchants and business men such valuable aid in pushing to a successful climax an event of vital importance to all.

Chairman's Reply.

Mr. Werner's voice was full of emotion as he spoke, to those who honored him, his words of appreciation.

"It is very kind of you all," said he, "to say so many nice things of me. What little I have done has been for the benefit of Akron and her people. If either have been, or will be benefited by what I have done or may do, I shall feel abundantly compensated for my efforts. I have lived in Akron 31 years, and I am today prouder of the city than I have ever been before, and this kindly expression from her citizens makes Akron more dear to me than I have words to tell."

The applause to Mr. Werner's remarks was tremendous.

Royally Entertained.

An escort of the Elks then took Mr. Werner and the committee to the fine club room of the Elks on Mill st., near corner of Market, where they were entertained royally.

The guests at the club were: Paul E. Werner, Chas. H. Baker, Louis Loeb, B. M. Pillmore, A. C. Rohrbacher, Burdette L. Dodge, H. L. Snyder, H. A. Kasson, Julius Kroffke, M. O'Neil and H. B. Mantion.

Cleveland in a body. The C. L. U. will have a large banner and so will the local street car union.

The delegations will be met at the Cleveland depot by a delegation from the Strikers' association and headed by a band will be marched to Germania hall, where the performance will be given.

Canton is also going to send a large delegation, but Akron will not be outdone in the size of its delegation nor in enthusiasm of its members as evidenced by the hustling being done to get up a big excursion party.

An open meeting will be held at C. M. B. A. hall Tuesday evening by the C. L. U. and local Street Car union, to add the finishing touches to the arrangements.

Both of the local street car lines have agreed to run special cars Wednesday night to accommodate the excursionists upon their return from Cleveland. The delegation will return about 1 o'clock Thursday morning.

FAIR NOTES.

The huge dragon which attracted so much attention during the Free Carnival and Street Fair was destroyed by fire at Bierce park Saturday night. Several men escaped from the fire with difficulty.

Mr. George W. Crouse Will Visit the Great Iron King.

The committee appointed by the Alumni of Buchtel college to solicit funds for that institution have received word that Hon. George W. Crouse will be unable to visit Andrew Carnegie at his Scotland home.

It was the intention to have Mr. Crouse visit the Iron King personally and ask him to contribute $50,000 towards an endowment fund for the college. The committee believed that Mr. Crouse could place the matter before Mr. Carnegie in such a way that the donation would be forthcoming. The Akron manufacturer will sail for home however Oct. 2, and will have no time to see Mr. Carnegie.

This was not the only gift that Akronians hoped to obtain from the great iron magnate. Mr. Crouse is by this time in receipt of a letter from Mr. R. H. Wright, in which it is suggested that he make an effort to get a substantial donation for a public library building for this city.

Mr. Carnegie has made numerous presents, of this nature and he was to have been asked to help Akron.
